Dear Mr. [REDACTED]

MM

Mr. George Steiner, formerly of the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton, has written a brilliant book in "Tolstoy or Dostoevsky." The publisher is Alfred A. Knopf.

In light of the subject matter discussed in my letter of April 1, 1959 to your office, it is interesting to read pages 24 and 145.

The basic technique of the Communies appears to be the use of the work done by Barlow on the relationship between the nervous system and paranoia combined with the material contained in Coyne Camp Campbell's book "Induced Delusions."

Sincerely,

Arthur B. Pearson
